“Access to Care: New Variations on a Theme”

Access to Care is the new paradigm for health policy and health services. Access is concerned with helping people command appropriate health care resources in order to preserve or improve their health, as well as their community’s wellbeing. Access is a complex concept. The extent to which a population experiences “access to care” depends on financial, organizational and social or cultural barriers that limit the utilization of services. The availability of services in our community must be considered within the context of the health needs and material and cultural settings of diverse groups.

This alumni lecture series will address how access to care can be accomplished utilizing the oral healthcare team in order to help our patients gain access leading to healthy outcomes using various strategies that our speakers will present.
