Welcome to Meharry Today Online Digest. This interactive PDF serves to keep readers up to date on the latest news and events taking place at Meharry Medical College. This issue of Meharry Today Online Digest highlights the beloved Dr. Henry A. Moses, who in his 50 years of service has touched the lives not only of students and alumni, but faculty, staff and employees throughout his career. His story fully represents the motto, “Worship of God Through Service to Mankind.”

We also share good news about the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Center for Health Policy at Meharry Medical College as it celebrates its fifth year anniversary.

This latest edition also includes information on the search for the 12th President of Meharry Medical College as well as stories describing the successful achievements of our students from winning national research contests to participating in national protests against injustice.

On behalf of the editorial team, enjoy!

Sincerely,
Janet M. Caldwell

Meharry Medical College held its 139th Convocation, Monday, October 13, 2014 at 10 a.m. in the ballroom of The Cal Turner Family Center for Student Education. This was the first event held in the newest building on campus.

“Today, we celebrate a proud history that was born from an act of kindness and is nurtured by people who dedicate themselves to providing education, opportunity and care to those who have the least but need it the most,” said A. Cherrie Epps, Ph.D., president and chief executive officer of Meharry Medical College.

André L. Churchwell, M.D., professor of medicine (cardiology), professor of radiology and radiological sciences, professor of biomedical engineering and senior associate dean for diversity affairs at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, was the keynote speaker and an honorary degree recipient. He advised students to learn new models of health care and to challenge themselves daily. He then asked students to seek support from mentors and continue their personal journeys with self-improvement. “The most important aspect that will keep you honest is unadorned humility,” said Churchwell. “Confront uncertainty and ignorance with vivacious intent.”

Bishop Joseph W. Walker III, D.Min., senior pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church and presiding Bishop-Elect, Full Gospel Fellowship, also received an honorary degree from the College. Walker stated that Mt. Zion recognizes the important relationship between the faith community and health care especially in dealing with disparities and helping people have access to quality health care.
“Mt. Zion is committed to investing in students, particularly those pursuing degrees in health care,” said Walker.

Award recipients

Edith Faye Smith Rayford, M.D. ’88
The Axel C. Hansen, M.D. ’44 Distinguished Physician Award

Robert S. Elam, D.D.S. ’80, M.A.G.D.
The Fred C. Fielder, D.D.S. ’60 Distinguished Dentist Award

Cynthia M. Harris, Ph.D. ’85, D.A.B.T.
The Harold D. West, Ph.D. Distinguished Biomedical Scientist Award

For the first time in its history, Meharry Medical College awarded four unsuspecting students with academic scholarships funded by the U.S. Department of Education through Title III of the current Higher Education Act and covering 100 percent of tuition costs for their final year of attendance. All were selected based on financial need, merit and academic excellence and aggregate loan indebtedness.

The scholarship recipients are:

Italo Brown, School of Medicine; Naila Ortega, School of Dentistry and Nchelem Ehule and Efe Oghoghome, both from the School of Graduate Studies and Research.

The cost of a health professions’ education is astronomical. Students choose to study at Meharry because they believe in, and uphold, the mission of the College: serving the underserved and underrepresented through education, research and patient care. One of the key objectives of President Epps and her administration is to be able to provide financial assistance to students.

SACSCOC 2017 Accreditation

Meharry Medical College is scheduled for review for reaffirmation of accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) in 2017. SACSCOC is the regional body for the accreditation of degree-granting higher education institutions in the southern states. Accreditation serves as the common denominator of shared values and practices among the diverse institutions within the region. Accreditation by SACSCOC indicates the institution meets standards and requirements outlined in the Principles of Accreditation, establishes eligibility to participate in federal student financial aid programs and assures the public that the College’s educational and business processes have contributed to providing a quality education for its students and fulfilling its mission.

The process for reaffirming accreditation includes several steps:

• SACSCOC review of the Compliance Certification Report by an Off-Site Committee, November 2016

• Submission of a Focus Report, to respond to “non-compliance” findings, January 2017

• Submission of a Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP), due January 2017

• SACSCOC On-Site Committee visit to the campus, March 7-9, 2017

• Response to the Visiting Committee Report, August 2017

• Determination of accreditation status by the SACSCOC Board of Trustees, December 2017

Faculty, staff and students will serve on Self-Study committees and will have multiple opportunities to help shape the Quality Enhancement Plan. For additional information about the 2017 SACSCOC accreditation process, standards, committees, and other questions, please contact: Juanita F. Buford, Ed.D., senior advisor to the president for strategic planning and accreditation, jbuford@mmc.edu.

Meharry Medical College Awarded Accreditation in All Three Schools

School of Medicine

The LCME voted to continue accreditation of the medical education program leading to the M.D. degree at the Meharry Medical College School of Medicine for an eight-year term. The program’s next full survey will take place during the 2021-2022 academic year.

School of Dentistry

PreDoc and GPR Programs are governed by the Commission on Dental
Accreditation. An onsite review is conducted consisting of interviews with administrators, instructors, staff and students to verify information in the self-study and ensure that the program meets minimum accreditation standards. All accredited programs receive a follow-up site review every seven years, except for programs in the specialty of oral and maxillofacial surgery, which are reviewed every five years. Both programs were reviewed in November 2014 and are accredited.

School of Graduate Studies and Research

The Master of Science in Public Health (MSPH) program at Meharry Medical College is accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH). This body accredits academic public health programs nationally and internationally. CEPH accreditation is considered the gold standard for public health. Meharry’s MSPH program was the first public health accredited program in Middle Tennessee obtained in 2009.

New Student Education Center Opens

Meharry Medical College officially opened The Cal Turner Family Center for Student Education, on Friday, October 24, 2014 with a ribbon cutting and dedication ceremony.

The Cal Turner Family Center for Student Education is the newest major building on campus since 1978 and the first building on Meharry’s campus to bear the name of a Nashville philanthropic family. The gift from the Cal Turner Family Foundation is one of the largest grants the Foundation has ever made.

Meharry Medical College has invested nearly $90 million in campus construction, renovations and infrastructure improvements which began in 2007. Funding has come from multiple sources including significant philanthropic and government gifts and grants, financing through the U.S. Department of Education Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) capital financing program and other debt financing.

President A. Cherrie Epps, Ph.D., said, “This new building also represents our dedication to our mission. I also want to thank Mr. Cal Turner and The Cal Turner Family Foundation for continuing its long-standing support.”
EDUCATION

Students Balance Academics with Service

Unlike traditional colleges and universities, our students create opportunities to act and make a difference in the Nashville community, truly embodying the motto: “Worship of God Through Service to Mankind.” They commit their free time to volunteering, service and mission trips. Their passion, independence and love for serving others is evident in the number of community service and volunteer hours dedicated to projects in which they receive no academic credit or recognition. During the 2013-2014 academic year, student organizations of the College dedicated 280 hours of their time to community service and volunteer activities. Our students participate in health walks, raising funds and hosting clothing and food drives for the needy, volunteering to feed the homeless and speaking with children in schools located in underserved areas.

ECONOMIC IMPACT

Economic Contributions to the Community

As the cornerstone of a comprehensive academic health sciences center, Meharry Medical College has been improving overall health, health care education and research for more than a century. Meharry is a dedicated health advocate for the Nashville community, especially those who are uninsured or underinsured and those who have limited access to medical and dental care.

Over the last four years, Meharry has provided an average of approximately $36 million annually in uncompensated medical and dental care to the Nashville community. Additionally, Meharry provides social support programs such as Adopt-A-Grandparent, Treatment Access Project II and the Rainbow Program that aids the homeless, the elderly, substance abusers and those with mental illness. Meharry physicians and dentists treat uninsured and underinsured patients in more than a third of the counties in the state of Tennessee.

With operational expenditures, investments in new construction, renovations, leasehold improvements, employees and students, Meharry’s total annual economic impact on the State of Tennessee is approximately $600 million.

MEHARRY STAFF

After 50 Years on the Job, Campbell Has No Plans to Retire

Joan E. Campbell has worked as a licensed practical nurse (LPN) in two departments since her arrival at Meharry: the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology and the Department of Pediatrics. She received her LPN degree in 1982 making her a member of the second LPN class to graduate from Meharry.

Campbell loves working with the students saying they are always respectful and eager to learn. In her 50 years, Campbell has seen employees come and go. She firmly believes people are hired from Meharry because employers know they have been trained and trained well.

“I have no plans to retire,” said Campbell. “A lot of my friends are retired, but I want to keep working for now. Nursing is so important and I like staying occupied and busy.”

CDC Awards Meharry Medical College $451,430 to Drive Down Chronic Diseases in North and Northeast Nashville

REACH grant aims to improve health and reduce health disparities

Meharry Medical College has been awarded a Racial and Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH) grant from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in the amount of $451,430. This grant will be used in the next three years to launch Nashville REACH 2020. The program aims to prevent obesity, diabetes and heart disease among African-American residents living in the 37207 and 37208 zip codes, an area in Nashville, Tennessee hit hardest by chronic diseases. Meharry was the only REACH grant funded in Tennessee.

Margaret Hargreaves, Ph.D., professor of internal medicine at Meharry, is the principal investigator of the project and will lead the effort with key stakeholders, including the Tennessee Department of Health and the Nashville Health Disparities Coalition, to form partnerships with churches and neighborhood associations in North and Northeast Nashville.

Meharry Researcher Co-Edits New Book on Obesity Interventions in Underserved Communities

Virginia Brennan, Ph.D., is co-editor of a new book, Obesity Interventions in Underserved Communities: Evidence and Directions, released in October 2014 and published by
In Obesity Interventions, Dr. Brennan, along with two other researchers, brilliantly compiled a collection of the most up-to-date literature reviews, commentaries and activist papers—or reports from the field—from authors who are on the front lines addressing the obesity epidemic. The book takes a full contextual view when considering how to address effective treatment and intervention methods implemented across a wide spectrum of underserved populations.

RWJF Center for Health Policy Reaches Milestone Year

2015 marks a milestone year for the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Center for Health Policy at Meharry Medical College. For five years, the Center has provided leadership in health policy education, training and research. The Center awarded $540,000 in health policy research grants, published 35 manuscripts and articles by affiliated faculty and students, gave 43 presentations at conferences, awarded 107 conference travel scholarships and added five new members to the National Advisory Board. The first cohort of doctoral fellows from Vanderbilt University and the fifth cohort of Health Policy Scholars will graduate in May. Along with these accomplishments, the Center also has been awarded full funding from RWJF until 2018. At the culmination of this funding, a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Endowed Chair of Health Policy will be established.

PATIENT CARE

Total Health Medical and Dental Care

Meharry Medical Group has officially launched Total Health Medical & Dental Care in Antioch, Tennessee, a 6,550-square-foot comprehensive medical facility, the only one in the Antioch area. Both medical and dental care for the entire family is offered in one location.

Clinical services provided are primary care, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, annual physicals, vaccines, oral exams, dental X-rays, tooth extractions and dental cleanings. Staff members include six physicians, three oral surgeons, a registered nurse, one medical assistant, one dental hygienist and two dental assistants.

GIVING

Annual Donor Breakfast Honors Benefactors

William B. Butler, D.D.S. ’73, M.S., dean emeritus, meets his scholarship recipient, Sydney Williams, School of Dentistry, Class of 2016.

Meharry’s Donor Appreciation Breakfast was held Monday, October 13, 2014 in The Cal Turner Family Center for Student Education, followed by Meharry’s 139th Annual Convocation. With approximately 200 attendees each year, the Donor Appreciation Breakfast is designed to recognize Meharry’s scholarship donors and provide them with the opportunity to meet and get to know their scholarship recipients. Donors often relay how much they enjoy putting a “face to their scholarship” and engaging with the students who benefit from their generosity. In some cases, lasting friendships are formed as students and donors continue to keep in touch throughout their time at Meharry and beyond.

Sixth Annual Corporate Recognition Honors Generous Business Community

The Sixth Annual Meharry Corporate Recognition Reception was held in the ballroom of The Cal Turner Family Center for Student Education. Sixty-two individuals from the Nashville Business Community were among the guests who attended the reception.

The reception takes place each year to publicly recognize and thank Meharry’s corporate partners who donate a minimum of $1,000 annually to the College. Many of the partners are also Meharry Circle of Friends Gala Sponsors. The sponsorships, which help support student scholarships as well as other programmatic areas, are vital to the advancements of Meharry and its students.

Missy Acosta, vice president of marketing for Delta Dental of Tennessee, and Brian Tibbs, partner at Moody Nolan, Inc., spoke to the group regarding their companies’ financial support and partnerships with Meharry. The group also heard from three Meharry students, one from each school, who spoke about their experience at Meharry and their future health care plans upon graduation.

The Corporate Recognition Reception is sponsored by Meharry’s Division of Institutional Advancement Office of Corporate and Foundation Relations.

Missy Acosta, Delta Dental of Tennessee, vice president of marketing, speaks about the merits of supporting Meharry.

A Legacy of Touching Lives

For more than 50 years, Henry A. Moses, Ph.D. has been a revered touchstone for all Meharrrians. He’s fulfilled the role of teacher, counselor, financier, confidante, father figure and so much more. And, that’s why we love him.

by Gayle Starling-Melvin

Dr. Moses began his tenure at Meharry on September 1, 1964 as an assistant professor of biochemistry, soon becoming a full professor. In 1999, he obtained the status of professor emeritus of biochemistry.

In 2007, Dr. Moses, a member of the Guardians of Our Legacy, became the executive director of the Meharry National Alumni Association, Inc., a position he currently holds. In addition, he is a sought after visiting professor hitting the lecture circuit all over the country.

“What I like best about Meharry is seeing people living the motto of the institution, Worship of God
Through Service to Mankind,” said Dr. Moses. “It inspires me and makes my commitment to the College even deeper.” Dr. Moses feels Meharry has an obligation to its students—to make diamonds from the rough. “Sometimes it’s not even a rough diamond,” he said. “It’s a piece of coal. It has to be molded.”

Dr. Moses recalls three individuals, among many, he has helped who still remain close in his heart.

During the height of the Civil Rights Movement, a store belonging to the father of a dental student was burned down in Mississippi. The student came to Dr. Moses and told him what had happened. Without his father working, he would have to leave school. Dr. Moses pooled his own money, went to every faculty person on campus, including the fraternities, and asked them to help out. Everyone matched his contribution and on the next business day, Dr. Moses took the funds to the treasurer’s office. The student finished school and is now a practicing oral surgeon.

Another student, whose father was an alumnus, ran out of tuition money and came to Dr. Moses for help. Without hesitation, he not only gave the student money from his own pocket, he wrote a letter to “all of her daddy’s classmates” soliciting their help. They rallied together and she is now practicing in the field of forensic medicine and an oral surgeon in New York.

The third story involves an alumnus who graduated in the 1930s and became president of a small African country. Upon his death, he bequeathed money, and all interest made, to any student who wanted to study at Meharry who came from his country. One student was awarded the money and enrolled. By the second semester, he was told the money had run out. He visited Dr. Moses and told him he would have to leave Meharry. Dr. Moses went to Meharry’s treasury service, gave them $40,000 of his own money and Student stories about Dr. Moses

“In 2011, Dr. Moses pulled me into his office to tell me he didn’t think I was working to my full potential. Those words stuck like daggers... Now, I have excelled and become a major leader on campus. Dr. Moses has been integral in my success as a medical student and I will be forever grateful for his contribution to my life.”

Eddie Hackler III
Third-year, SOM, Cleveland, Ohio

“Dr. Moses is Meharry’s very own angel! He has been a blessing to my life as well as to so many other students and alumni. As president of the Pre-Alumni Association, I was faced with many difficult decisions I had to make during my administration. Dr. Moses was there to provide guidance and advice on how to approach and tackle these tough decisions. He has been an amazing mentor and sounding board through my tenure here at Meharry. His love for Meharry and the students motivates me to be a better Meharrian. I will be forever grateful for Dr. Moses and all his wisdom.”

Christopher D. Watson
Fourth-year, SOM, Dothan, Alabama

told them to “pay this boy’s tuition.” The student is now an oral and maxillofacial surgeon in Virginia.

Dr. Moses hears from all three during the year, especially at Christmas, Easter and Father’s Day. “That makes me feel really special,” he said.

Students flock to Dr. Moses with anything and everything, from depression and homesickness to financial struggles and grades, seeking out his advice and words of wisdom. “I always told my classes, from the time I started teaching, one of the things you all need to do is find a local church,” said Dr. Moses. “These are the people who will one day be your patients when you become clinical students. Get to know them. You may even get invited to a good Sunday dinner. And, many of them do.”

Tell us YOUR favorite Dr. Moses story!
Email: news@mmc.edu
“I always told my classes...one of the things you all need to do is find a local church,” said Dr. Moses. “These are the people who will one day be your patients...”

It is certainly not unusual for Dr. Moses to pick up the phone and call a student’s father, who is an alumnus (more than likely, someone he taught), and tell him his child is “misbehaving.” As he puts it, “I know hundreds of people’s daddy’s. And, I can pick up that phone and call them if the need presents itself.

“I’ve never been known as an easy teacher, but I have been known as a fair teacher. I demand excellence and discipline because I know what the students need in order to be successful. I still consider myself to be a fair evaluator. I expect students to meet standards so that wherever they go, at least the part of their education that I was responsible for at Meharry, they will stand head and shoulders with anybody else from any other place. Period.”

The Meharry 12 South Community Clinic is a student-run free clinic under the supervision of faculty physicians and oral surgeons of Meharry Medical College. It was founded by Meharry students and established in partnership with the United Neighborhoods Health Services clinic network. Its mission is to address health care disparities by providing free, high-quality care to Nashville’s underserved populations and by serving as a clinical skills training ground for students, inspiring the next generation of primary care specialists and dentists.

As reported in the clinic’s quarterly report, 80% of their patients do not have a regular physician; 70% are uninsured; 58% are female; 42% are male; 46% are African American; 13% are Caucasian; 4% are Hispanic; 2% are Asian or American Indian and 35% are non-specified.

The clinic is made possible by the dedicated student and faculty volunteers at Meharry, as well as donors and institutional support.

Through the vision of Edwin H. Hines, D.D.S. ’71 and with the support and encouragement of two visionary Meharry dental school deans, Fred C. Fielder, D.D.S. ’60 and William B. Butler, D.D.S. ’73, M.S., the Dental Display was launched in the 1980s and is located in the entrance of the School of Dentistry, adjacent to its lobby.

Dr. Hines acquired various, unique items for the Dental Display, some dating back to the late 1800s which serve as a tribute to those who cherish the history of the School of Dentistry. The exhibit includes: historical photos and portraits, dental chairs, classic dental equipment, scientific and technological products, awards and plaques. A separate glass cabinet holds relics that honor the Meharrrians who served in the armed forces.
SCHOOL OF GRADUATE STUDIES AND RESEARCH

Posters by Addai and Summers win First and Second-Place Honors at Conference

Congratulations to SOGSR students, Amma Addai and LaKeisha Summers, for obtaining first and second place, respectively, in the Graduate Student Category at the Minority Health and Health Disparities Grantees’ Conference held in National Harbor, Maryland in December 2014.

Addai’s presentation was titled: “Cocaine directly modulates HIV-1 integration in primary CD4+ T cells: Implications in HIV-1 pathogenesis among drug abusing HIV-1 patients.” Summers’ presentation was titled: “Examining a role of proline metabolism in the interaction between cocaine abuse and HIV associated neurocognitive disorders.”

Both Addai and Summers work with Dr. C.V. Dash at the Center for AIDS Health Disparities Research at Meharry Medical College.
STUDENT VOICES

Medical Students United Against Police Brutality

On December 10, 2014, approximately 50 Meharry medical students protested in solidarity with medical students across the nation, in what was deemed the “White Coat Die-In,” taking a stand against the violence and race-related trauma stemming from the lack of prosecutions in the police killings of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri and Eric Garner in New York City. The Nashville White Coat Die-In was a peaceful and silent protest taking place at Legislative Plaza from 3-4 p.m. CST.

Traffic was blocked for 4.5 minutes symbolizing the 4.5 hours that Michael Brown’s dead body remained in the streets of Ferguson until police began their investigation. The words, “I can’t breathe” were chanted 11 times in honor of the 11 times Eric Garner yelled to police that he could not breathe. Eleven minutes of silence followed as students reflected on how they, as future physicians, could impact change for racial justice.

By standing together, nationwide, medical students demonstrated that the medical student community views racial injustice as a public health crisis. Their slogan: “We are #whitecoats4blacklives.”

Lights, Camera, Music: Meharry Presents ‘The Bobby Jones Music Matinee’

On January 18, 2015, Grammy-award winning gospel music legend, Dr. Bobby Jones, visited Meharry Medical College to honor the College’s longstanding history of providing health care education, training and service to the community during a televised taping of “The Bobby Jones Music Matinee.” The program will air on IMPACT Network.

Community supporters poured into The Cal Turner Family Center for Student Education to witness the event, featuring musical acts from Sounds of Grace, Kairos Kreative Ministries, Free Spirit Singers and the Nashville Super Choir.

“I’m excited about saluting Meharry’s contributions being made in the community,” Dr. Jones said. “Many have no idea of the services offered by Meharry and I’m very happy to make these services known.”

The special honorees acknowledged during the evening were the Meharry Alumni, Meharry 12 South Community Clinic and the Meharry Medical Group. Their dedication to providing quality, compassionate—and often free—primary care services to poor and underserved populations in Nashville and around the world is the common thread that binds these three entities as being deserving of such high honors.
